Campus Life

Class of 2007

We entered Tufts on a bright and sunny day. Wiping away tears and saying our goodbyes, we headed towards the Academic Quad to begin Matriculation. We promptly threw out the Primary Source (the beginning of a monthly tradition) before giving thanks to all deities, spirits, and spiritual beings that it was not the official school newspaper - some sympathetic seniors took pity on us and gave us the Daily. Following the illumination ceremony, the Class of 2007 began its journey - and started running this campus! From the first weekend when we ventured to parties shouts of "T-U" and "07" overrode shouts of lesser classes. Many of us failed academically for the first time. Yet Freshman year holds fond memories - standing in 5 feet of snow smoking a cig, our first NQR, I-Cruise, the beginning of a sad relationship with campus food. Places like Tilton became cesspools of drinking and debauchery and we discovered TEMS. Many an unaware Freshman female fell to a male Senior. We discovered Anna's Taqueria (and Pepto), Boston became our playground, and the only good Spring Fling to hit Campus in awhile brought The Roots. Sophomore year, older and wiser, we came to the realization that Sophomores run Tufts. Seniors are too busy, Juniors are abroad, and Freshman are clueless. Everyone moved Downhill (Stratton!) and we partied - hard. Most of the Frats closed but there was booze and Club Ho (aka Hotung). We ran the Marathon with President Bacow and protested the Iraq War. We became politically conscious and Tufts problems with racial and cultural diversity hit campus in a big way. A Muslim student was attacked by members of a certain fraternity and beaten after being racially slurred. Almost the same day the Daily published the list of reported biased incidents. The staggering amount showed that this University still had a long way to go. We chose our majors, somehow found advisors, got Busted (yeah Buster Rhymes left us hanging again), and then we cried because we were going abroad. Spain, Germany, France, England, Japan, China, Chile, Ghana, and other countries became our homes for a semester or a year. We grew, realized why other countries have more fun (we were all legal!) and become more conscious citizens. Broke but happier we returned to Tufts. The Campus had changed. The Class of 08 ran things, all the Frats had closed, and the University got a bad case of gonorrhea (ewwww). The Danish cartoon controversy hit campus. Katrina and Rita thundered in and brought Tulane students and exposed the ever-widening social and economic divide in America. And then - Senior Year! We realized that we partied too hard and didn't do enough internships. There were degree sheets, GRE's, MCAT's, LSAT's, applications, personal statements, interviews. Some of us already had jobs and others swore we kill the next person who asked us what we were doing after graduation. But we realized that we loved this place. The friends we made, the times we had, the Profs, the classes (some of them anyway). We changed Tufts and it changed us. So here we are about to graduate, ready for the next step. Goodbye for now Tufts! And as the "07's" fade on the Hill, we say we won't forget you. Class of 2007 its time to run the rest of the world. JUMBO!

Tuftonian Traditions

In the early 1800's members of the Universalist Church searched for a site for a new liberal college. Philanthropist Charles Tufts donated twenty acres of "that bleak hill over in Medford," declaring "I will put a light on it." In 1852, Tufts College was granted a charter by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts becoming the United States' 163rd institution of higher learning.

Along the Row

The bell rang from the Chapel while we walked,
Oh, where are autumn days and nights like these!
I showed my friend the tower above the Hill,
And Capen Path, Ballou between the trees.
A gate in the Fence showed faintly in the dusk.
In East and West the lights began to shine.
A group of men passed by and called "Hullo-"
My hear sang and I thought "My college-mine!"
The Row in autumn twilight! Tall dark trees
Leaned kindly over us. We talked of games
But I remembered our familiar friends,
And I was silent thinking of old names.
The men who walked the Row before my time
Were by my side, good ghosts my thought awoke -
While I must show my friend the tennis court
The newest hall for men the gym. He spoke:
"How you must love this place!" My heart stood still
And ached to think how much I love this Hill.

The Canon

Located between Goddard Chapel and Ballou Hall is a replica of a cannon that served on the USS Constitution. Known as The Canon, it was donated by the city of Medford in 1954. Students and student groups paint messages on the Canon under the cover of night and guard thier message throughout the night. Over the years the Canon has announced events, sported political messages, encouraged athletic teams, born birthday wishes and many a marriage proposal.

Bowen Gate

Known as the "Kissing Gate" it lies between Gifford House, home to tthe current Tuft President, and Ballou Hall. The legend goes that if you kiss your sweetheart under the archway you will one day get married.

Brown & Blue

The Memorial Steps

The main entrance to campus. At each landing is a plaque commemorating Tufts men and women who gave their lives in service to their country. The steps are slippery and steep and annually award students with breaks, sprains, casts, and crutches.

The Tisch Roof

A newer traditional place on campus. It not only holds one of the best views of Boston but has been ranked the top make out spot on campus. Many a Jumbo holds fond memories of nights spent on the grassy knoll.

The Rape Steps

Located behind Carmichael Hall. The lore goes that the steps were designed for a woman's gait so a woman could outmaneuver her "male" attacker and escape sexual assault. They are for that reason given the nickname "The Rape Steps".

First Year's & Graduation Illumination Ceremonies

During orientation Freshman gather on the Hill to light candles marking the beginning of their time at Tufts. Four years later on the night before their graduation they will again gather on the Hill as the Chapel bells ring in Commencement Day

Tufts Night at the Pops

The Thursday before Commencement is the Night at the Pops at Symphony Hall with the Boston Pops Orchestra. The performance traditional ends with the singing of Tufts songs.

Senior Week & Graduation

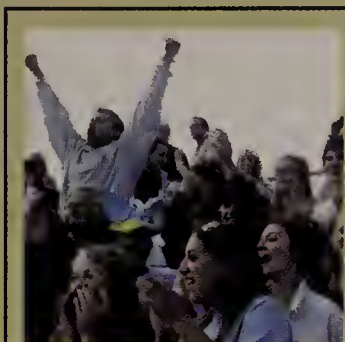

Week of social events preceding Graduation full of partying and celebration. Graduation activities include Baccalaureate, the Illumination Ceremony, University wide service, and smaller college and major programs.

"The Jumbo Spirit"

Homecoming

Held towards the end of September, it is a weekend celebration where alumni, students, and other members of the extended Tufts family gather to support Tufts teams, and celebrate life on the Hill.

Naked Quad Run (NQR)

Held every December at the beginning of Reading Period. Students strip down and run naked around the Residential Quad. In recent years there has been a Nighttime Quad Reception preceding NQR. It is believed that all true Jumbos must run once before they graduate.

Culture Fest

A TCU Senate sponsored street fair in April outside of the Mayer Campus Center to celebrate the University's cultural diversity. Cultural groups perform, hold activities, and most importantly - share food.

Tuftonia Day

The University's own Holiday held every April. The Tufts Community gathers to think, thank, love, and celebrate Tufts.

Spring Fling

A last hurrah before Spring Finals. It begins with a block party on Friday and a huge concert on the Presidents Lawn on Saturday featuring (hopefully) a major recording artist, such as the hip-hop group The Roots.

Kid's Day

Every April the Leonard Carmichael Society sponsors a carnival for Medford and Somerville elementary school children.

The Real Story of Jumbo

In 1861, a baby elephant was taken from the African jungle to Cairo and eventually acquired by the Royal Zoological Gardens in London. The small "puny" elephant was named Jumbo by its owners. Under the watchful eye of his trainer Mathew Scott, Jumbo grew to the heroic size of 11 ½ feet tall and 6 ½ to tons in weight. For nearly two decades, the internationally known Jumbo carried hundreds of thousands of children. Meanwhile a hungry P.T. Barnum coveted Jumbo, the largest creature in captivity, but held "no hope of ever getting him". Nevertheless, Barnum made an offer of $10,000 to the London Zoo. Unbeknownst to the showman, the London Zoo was looking to sell Jumbo. Lately, he had begun to throw unprecedented temper tantrums. The zoo, fearful of Jumbo kicking an imperialist impoverished bastard-child, was eager to sell him and in 1881 they accepted Barnums offer. Barnum made plans to bring Jumbo, an African elephant, to the land of Manifest-destined anti-immigrant Jim Crow America. Barnum decided to turn the sale into an international sensation. Somehow Barnum convinced the English they were being robbed. Suddenly Jumbo-mania swept both countries. There were dozens of songs, hundreds of poems, and thousands of letters begging Barnum to reconsider. But he refused. So did Jumbo. Jumbo would not enter the cage made for his trip to the US. Finally Barnum paid Jumbos keeper to come along. With his keeper by his side, Jumbo entered America.

Jumbo became the most famous animal in the world. Billed as the "Towering Monarch of His Mighty Race, Whose Like the World will Never See Again", Jumbo made over $3,000 a day an amount close to 1 billion now, something woman and people of color (except Oprah and the E Bay Guy) have yet to achieve. Unfortunately, the fame and money were not enough. P.T. Barnum had to take Jumbo to Canada. In the midst of their sending Native Canadians to internment schools for "aculturalization," they failed to monitor the train schedules and caused Jumbo's death. Jumbos best friend Tom Thumb, a tiny elephant, was on the tracks as an unexpected express train came thundering down. Ever the hero, Jumbo rushed in and pushed Tom Thumb to safety. Sadly, it was his last act. The train hit Jumbo from the rear. Jumbo spent his final moments being comforted by his loyal trainer Mathew Scott.

Barnum sent taxidermist Henry Ward to the scene. It took Ward and six butchers to shift through the 1,538 pound hide and 2,400 pounds of bone. Jumbos skeleton was given to the Museum of Natural History in New York and his heart to Cornell University. But Barnum gave Jumbos stuffed hide to Tufts University. Tufts declared Jumbo its official Mascot. Football players would touch Jumbos hide for good luck before each game. The hide stood in Barnum Hall until a fire consumed it in 1975. A quick thinking administrative assistant scooped up Jumbos ashes and placed them in a peanut butter jar. To this day Jumbos ashes are kept by the Athletic Director. Athletes touch the peanut jar before each game. His tail resides in Tufts Archives. A replica statue stands in front of Barnum Hall as a tribute to Jumbo. Tufts also holds the largest known elephant statue collection in the world.
JUMBO!!!!

Disclaimer: Jumbo is not to be blamed for any loses that may be incurred by Tufts Athletic Teams. They should thank all elephant deities for showing them mercy. JUMBO!!!

"This is also a school that receives fierce loyalty and devotion (rather than money) from everyone affiliated with it...to improve the school that they love-their alma mater."

Tufts Yearbook, 1983

With seven students and a faculty of four, Tufts University was opened as this country's 163rd institution of higher learning. Back then, the only building on the Hill was Ballou Hall. The curriculum included courses in Latin, Greek, math, rhetoric, theology, revealed religion, moral science, and philosophy.

Currently, Tufts has over 5,000 undergraduate students and numerous courses of study. It also has eight graduate schools, including the nation's top school of international studies, The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, one of the best medical schools in the country, Tufts School of Medicine, and one of the few veterinary schools, the Cummings School of Veterinary Medicine. The undergraduate campus spans across both Somerville and Medford, upsetting members in both communities.

One of the nation's oldest and finest academic institutions, it took Tufts until the 1980s to even get a campus center. Tufts, however, continuously refuses to join the Ivy League because we're just that good. It has been listed as one of the hottest schools to study abroad and in 2006 was ranked by Newsweek as one of the twenty-five New Ivies.

So, what makes Tufts special? Is it pride in our school? (Huh?) Our pride in our football team? (What?) Our Greek pride? (Aren't they closed?) We used to have a circus day, but not anymore. Let's just say that Division 1 schools ain't got nothin' on us. It doesn't matter because we still have...JUMBO!!!!

Honoring Their Legacy

Jumbo News

Coretta Scott King

Coretta Scott King, who turned a life shattered by her husband's assassination into one devoted to enshrining his legacy of human rights and equality, has died. She was 78. She was a supportive lieutenant to her husband, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., during the most tumultuous days of the American Civil Rights Movement. She had married him in 1953. After her husband's assassination in Memphis, Tenn., on April 4, 1968, she kept his dream alive while also raising their four children.

James Brown

James Brown, the undeniable "Godfather of Soul," died of heart failure on Christmas morning. He was 73. The pompadoured dynamo's classic singles included "Papa's Got a Brand New Bag" and "I Got You (I Feel Good)." One of the major musical influences of the past 50 years, Brown was to rhythm and dance music what Bob Dylan was to lyrics. From Mick Jagger to Michael Jackson, David Bowie to Public Enemy, Brown's rapid-footed dancing, hard-charging beats and heartfelt yet often unintelligible vocals changed the musical landscape.

Gerald Ford

Former President Gerald R. Ford, who declared "Our long national nightmare is over" as he replaced Richard Nixon but may have doomed his own chances of election by pardoning his disgraced predecessor, died at his desert home on Dec. 26. He was 93. A Michigan Republican elected to Congress three times before becoming the first appointed vice president in 1973 after Spiro Agnew left amid scandal, Ford was Nixon's hand-picked successor, a man of much political experience who had never run on a national ticket. He was as open and straightforward as Nixon was tightly controlled and conspiratorial.

Saddam Hussein

Saddam Hussein, the former Iraqi dictator who terrorized a nation for nearly a quarter-century until he was deposed and captured by U.S. troops, was hanged on Dec. 29 for ordering the murders of 148 of his countrymen 24 years ago.

*from the Provost,
Mr. Jamshed Bharucha*

To the Tufts Class of 2007,

Congratulations on your graduation! You should be very proud of your accomplishments.

In the past four years, Tufts has visibly been moving from strength to strength. I have truly enjoyed getting to know some of you during your time here; in my interactions with students I am always impressed by your poise, focus, drive, and understanding.

At Tufts we consider it our mission to educate future leaders and global citizens. However, you do not just become leaders as you walk off campus after graduating. Many of you are already actively demonstrating the best values of this institution. As Tufts students, you have left an imprint on communities across the world during these tumultuous times. Through your activities on and off campus, you have had a significant impact on local politics, international understanding, and the global environment.

You are all already global leaders, with the potential to effect enormous change. I will follow your careers with great interest, and hope to see you again as alumni.

I wish you the best of luck in your future endeavors.

Sincerely,

Jamshed Bharucha
Provost and Senior Vice President

Wisdom...

*from the President,
Mr. Lawrence S. Bacow*

Dear Members of the Class of 2007:

We first met on the quad, on August 27, 2003. How quickly the years have passed. In my matriculation address to you and your families, I noted that the world faced many profound challenges that cry out for new knowledge, understanding, and creativity. I knew then, as I know now, that each of you, armed with your Tufts education, will have a hand in addressing those challenges.

Over the past four years, you have done remarkable things. You undertook exciting research with your faculty mentors through our Summer Scholars program. You traveled to other nations, bridging cultures and bringing people together despite our differences. You volunteered extensively in our neighborhoods and brightened our days with music and dance. You gave Tufts your all, whether on the playing field or in the laboratory. You made the Hill and beyond a much better place, and did it with true Jumbo spirit.

Some of my fondest memories of your class include performing with the orchestra during the annual concert on Parents Weekend, seeing how you welcomed our guest students from Tulane following Hurricane Katrina, and literally being lifted over Heartbreak Hill by cheering throngs who came out to encourage the marathon team.

Adele and I appreciate all the ways in which you contributed to the community and included us in your activities. We hope the Senior Dinners and receptions at Gifford House are among your many fond memories of Tufts.

Commencement lies ahead. You are ready for this moment, the beginning of the next stage of your life. Use your Tufts education for good purposes and continue to work to make the world a better place. Stay in touch with your friends and the people on campus who have become special in your lives, and take advantage of the vast network of Tufts alumni and friends across the globe. No matter where you are, Tufts is with you.

Best wishes to the Class of 2007. Congratulations!

Sincerely,

Lawrence S. Bacow
President

A large, glowing blue moon dominates the upper half of the frame, set against a dark, starry sky. Below the moon, a dark, choppy ocean stretches to the horizon. The moon's light reflects on the water's surface, creating a shimmering path. The text "It Ain't Easy" is written in a white, slightly distressed font across the middle of the image, partially overlapping the moon and the sky.

The Africana Center

Director Fall 2006: Lisa Coleman
Director Spring 2007: Denise Phillips

"The house sits on the corner of Professors Row and College Avenue, one of the busiest intersections on Tufts campus. However, many people have never entered nor can recall the name of the house. This building is the Africana Center and the residential unit Capen House. This building and its directors Lisa Coleman and Denise Phillips have been instrumental not only in the lives of students of African descent, but students of all backgrounds. For many this house serves as a refuge from the daily struggles faced on a college campus, with its warm atmosphere and caring staff, many students often find themselves stopping by the African Center, just for a visit."

Ashley Mitchell, PAA President 2005- 2006

Asian American Center

Director 2006- 2007: Linell Yugawa

"As a member of the Asian American Peer Leader Program I was able to reach out to first year students, serving as a resource both academically and socially. The relationship I built through this program, with other members and with first-year students, continue today in my last year at Tufts."

Jonathan Chan, Class of 2007

"...Sharing our experiences and viewpoints every Monday during open block on issues from our past, present, and future made me realize that we were all just simply trying to shape our own identities of what being Asian-American means to us as college students."

-Apurvi Mehta, Class of 2007
On being a Peer Leader

"For me, the Asian American Peer Leader program was much more than a program set up to advise Asian American first-year students; as peer leaders we had the chance to interact with a diverse group of University leaders and learn leadership and public speaking skills, among other things, in the weekly meetings throughout the year. It helped broaden my experience at Tufts, and through this participation, we were exposed to different facets of the university and learning practical skills that we could take with us beyond Tufts."

Jesal Shah, Class of 2007

International Center

Director 2006-2007: Jane Etish-Andrews

"The International Center plays a fundamental role at Tufts. Not only do they provide immigration advising and visa documents for all members of the community, they also coordinate numerous events during the academic year for both undergraduate and graduate students, and alumni ranging from orientation programs and conversation partnerships to apple picking and social dinners, lunches, and an alumni network. As well as counseling individuals the Center also acts as advisor to the International Club and the International House. Together the international center and the I club try to use the wealth of diversity offered to us at Tufts, as a opportunity where we may celebrate and learn from each others cultural differences rather than use them to discriminate or ostracize."

Yi-Hwa Hanna
I-Club President 2005 -2006

THE GROUP OF SIX

The Group of Six works collectively and independently to develop knowledge and appreciation for diversity at Tufts. In a four year period marked by growing antagonism and racial and religious intolerance, these Centers and their staff have offered many students shelter from bigotry and oppression. You may think they only separate us. You may believe they have no purpose. You may have never entered their doors. Yet for many humans these are a haven of acceptance - a home. Hear their stories.

The Latino Center

Director 2006- 2007: Ruben Salinas-Stern

My experience with the Latino Center started 4 years ago when I met my Latino Peer Advisor. Since then I have spent much time there, from ALAS meetings, to late night studying, or just to hang out with some friends. The Center is an outlet from my hectic Tufts lifestyle. It has at times been my second home, a place where I could enter - since freshman year- without any explanation. I have nothing but fond memories, and I know that it will always keep its door open to me."

-Monica Clavijo, Class of 2007

"Working at the Latino Center provided another path through which I could become more involved in the community. As a student assistant there, I interact with those students that frequent the Center throughout the day. They often stop by to chill for a minute in between classes, use the computers, or take out a DVD from our movie collection. And outside of my employment here, I spend nights studying in the LC, attend ALAS meetings in the LC, and meet both faculty and students in the LC during BBQs or annual Bolles House celebrations."

- Lourdes Laguna, Class of 2007

The Lesbian Gay Bisexual Transgendered Center

Director 2006-2007: Dona Yarbough

"The LGBT center shares its bright yellow building with the Latino Center. In fact one basically has to walk through the Latino Center to get there. The joke has always been that if a closeted person is entering the horribly yellow Bolles House and his friends see him, he can just claim to be Latino! The LGBT Center in reality is one of many of a few places like it on any college campus. The Tufts Queer community is exceptionally lucky to have this incredible resource and internal support system. The bevy of programming and student organizations run out of the Center is seen campus wide and greatly raise awareness of queer people and queer issues here at Tufts."

-Sam Stiegler

The Women's Center

Director 2006-2007: Susan Gilbert

The Center...addresses matters of specific concern to women in order to create an atmosphere that is safe, supportive, and intellectually rich...In recent years the Center has focused on the crossroads between the arts and education to enhance how people think about these issues, including an annual coffee house with featured poets and artists and a digital storytelling project. On any given day the Center is bustling with students who come to organize programs, hold meetings, see friends, initiate student activism, hold discussions, or enjoy the cozy comfort of our little white house on Talbot Avenue. "

We also cover other more specific premedical groups, such as Sharewood Clinic and MAPS.

Economics Society

Because Tufts has no business school, the Economics Society plays a vital role in broadening Tufts' Liberal Arts experience for those students interested in developing business skills.

Members of the Economics Society share experiences about classes, economic related activities, internships, and the job search process, in addition to strengthening the Economics major and department by offering feedback to the department on class topics. The Economics Society also brings in independent speakers in business and economic-related topics.

Human Factors and Ergonomics Society

In order to maximize human performance, a knowledge of human factors and ergonomics is required. In collaboration with the undergraduate degree program in human factors engineering, the society promotes and advances understanding of human factors involved in the design, manufacture, and use of different machines, systems and devices. We achieve these goals through the interchange of knowledge and methodology amongst the behavioral, biological, and physical sciences. In the past, we have published an engineering psychology newsletter, and participated in events sponsored by the national human factors organization.

Public Health at Tufts (PHAT)

Public Health at Tufts is a campus group for students interested in a variety of public health issues. The PHAT executive board consists of experienced members of PHAT who lead the groups activities, and anyone is welcome to participate!

Pre-Veterinary Society

The Tufts University Pre-Veterinary Society is comprised of Tufts students who are all interested in veterinary medicine, animal care, animal welfare, and just animals in general.

Tufts Financial Group

The Group organizes an annual Financial Careers Symposium in conjunction with Tufts Career Services for Tufts undergrads to hear about experiences of professionals from across the industry. We have also set up the TFG Alpha Fund, the first student-run investment fund in the history of the university.

Tufts Joint Operations

By land, by air, and by sea, the Tufts Joint Operations serves as the home base for Army, Air Force, and Navy ROTC students. We strive to present a positive image of ROTC and the armed services on campus, in addition to facilitating better communications between ourselves and our detachments at MIT.

HALLOWEEN

Candid

The Tufts Tradition even the Administration can't stop. It's listed in the Pacheyderm as a Nighttime Quad Reception. There are Krispy Creme Donuts (well before they closed down) and hot chocolate and a nice little festive party on the Academic Quad...Then You hit West Hall.

On the first night of Fall Reading Period, Tufts oldest building holds a waterfull of beverages & plenty of people sportyng bath robes. Why? Because all Jumbos (and a ton of Townies) know that in a few hours Jumbos toss off there clothes and run naked around the Rez Quad

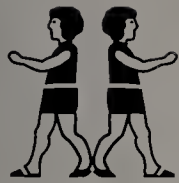

NQR

The lore goes that any true Jumbo must once run before they graduate. Note of Caution: Beware Snow, Ice, Facebook, Youtube, and Townies...

Features

horoscope Bad Habits by Sign

Aries: Out in Front

Rams have a habit of pushing to the front of the line, both literally and figuratively. And while this quality has helped Aries get ahead, it can also compromise their relationships. Putting an animal, child or plant in their care can correct the problem. As soon as this sign's nurturing qualities are cultivated, their selfishness will diminish.

Nerve-Wracking Twins

Geminis are the nail-biters of the zodiac. Twins are self-conscious about their hands, and need to keep them busy at all times. Activities like knitting, carving, or bead work provide welcome distractions. Weekly manicures will also keep temptation at bay. Twins are less likely to gnaw their cuticles when they've just paid for their upkeep!

Lavish Leos

The guy who's sitting next to you in the elegant restaurant, shouting to his personal assistant on his cell phone? Probably a Leo. It's only natural that a sign that is blessed with creativity, charm and wit feels tempted to show off. Actually, this desire to brag is rooted in insecurity. The sooner Lions learn to compliment others, the quicker they'll receive the praise they crave.

Libras Love to Shop

Librans gave birth to the term "shopaholic". These folks have every credit card known to man. And while their taste is undeniably impeccable, it can get them in trouble at bankruptcy court. What's really at stake here is a quest for beauty. Enjoying simple but inexpensive pleasures like nature walks and museums can quell the urge to splurge.

Truthfully Honest Sagittarius

Archers have a bad habit of telling the truth. And while these folks have the best intentions, that doesn't take the sting out of comments like, "Gee, those pants make you look fat!" or "Were you drunk when you wrote this report?" The best way for Archers to cultivate tact is through prodigious study. Etiquette books will definitely help!

Antisocial Aquarius

Water-bearers get into the habit of creating completely self-sufficient lives. Unfortunately, this makes it difficult for them to achieve intimacy. Basically, Aquarians are afraid that relationships will compromise their independence. Fortunately, these folks love to experiment. By treating intimacy as an exercise, this sign can relinquish control for the sake of loving relationships.

Taurean Trash

Bulls love clutter. Being surrounded by all their possessions gives them a sense of security. It also creates headaches, confusion, and chaos. Storage systems that keep their stuff on display will prevent this sign from strewing their stuff all over the house. Stacking baskets, glass jars, and open shelving can promote organization.

Cancers and the Candyman

If you've ever wondered how Cancers stay so sweet, take a look at their sugar intake. This sign loves cookies, candy, and ice cream. An occasional indulgence is fine, but too much dessert can take a toll on waist lines and energy levels. What Crabs are really seeking is oral gratification. Sugar-free gum or dried fruit provides a healthy distraction from candy crunching.

Virgos Fear Filth

These nit-pickers sometimes compromise their own pleasure for the sake of perfection. Deep down inside, these folks are really sensualists at heart. They need to learn that it is better to feel good than to look good. Allocating a few minutes each day for fun but messy activities like baking, painting, or sculpting can cure Virgos of their fear of filth.

Strictly Scorpios

Nobody carries a grudge better than this sign. Unfortunately, hanging on to resentments has a way of crowding out love, happiness, and trust. In order for a Scorpio to let go of anger, they must first practice self-care. Getting a massage every month or writing in a journal each day will soften this sign's heart and enable forgiveness.

Capricorns Can't Quit

This sign is the original workaholic. Many Capricorns fear that poverty will set in the moment they stop toiling. Keeping a gratitude journal can break this terrible habit. The more Capricorn becomes aware of their non-material blessings, the healthier their behavior will become. No more cutting vacations short for the sake of work.

Pickled Pisces

As a water sign, it's only natural that Pisceans find comfort in liquids. When those liquids have a high alcohol content, problems can ensue. Naturally, a twelve-step program can be of enormous benefit here. Meditation and yoga can help, too, as they allow Pisces to achieve a healthy sense of nirvana. That's all these Fish are really seeking.

Campus Debate Source's Carol

"I feel my heart break to see a nation ripped apart by it's own greatest strength—it's diversity."
- Melissa Etheridge

In Review: A Year of Bias

This year Tufts intolerance and hatred, something often overshadowed by the University's claims of diversity and internationalism, gained national headlines. Throughout the 2006-2007 year bias incident after bias incident came to the attention of the Tufts Community often in the form of viewpoints published in the Tufts Daily.

On October 11th, "smut" was written on the Cannon that had previously been painted for National Coming Out Day. Two days later firecrackers were thrown through a window of the Rainbow House (the LGBT residential house) at 3 am. On Halloween, students participated in Tufts favorite form of "dress up" - becoming another's race. Echoing practices associated with Jim Crow, Tufts had its own "P. Diddy" as one student sported a blackened face for the occasion. Others threw a Pilgrim and Indians party choosing to "turn" Native American by wearing paper feathered hats and uttering one word syllables. On November 18th, several Tufts students were racially slurred by a patron while at Divas Lounge. When they notified the management they were met with resistance and inaction. Finally, the ever faithful antagonist at The Primary Source, billing themselves as the Journal of Conservative Thought, published in its December Issue several prejudice Christmas Carols.

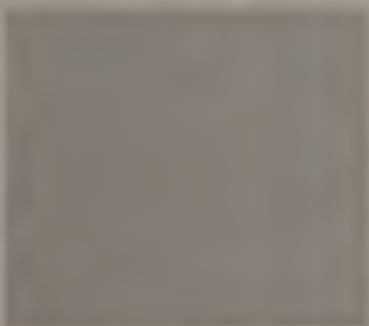

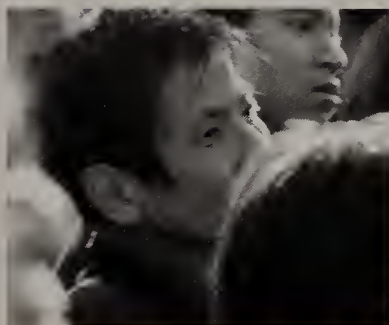

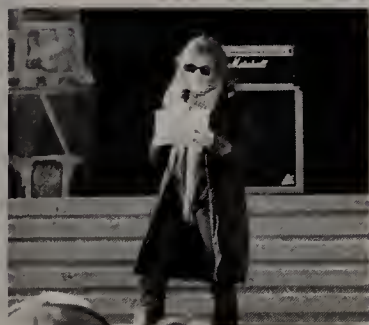

One of the most glaring songs entitled "O Come All Ye Black Folk" characterized all Black people with such despicable claims as "boisterous yet desirable" and "born into the ghetto". According to the Source's parody, the "52" Black members of the freshman class were admitted despite "F's, D's, and G's" and the occasion was cause for gospel choirs to sing "O Jesus! We need you now to fill our racial quotas". Claiming it was an attack on affirmative action and not the Black race, the Carol and its blatant racism sparked campus outrage in the form of numerous emails, letters, viewpoints, and public meetings. The Carol soon gained national attention. The TCU Senate meeting to address the Carol was showcased on Fox News 25, CBS4, and was picked up by the Associated Press and CNN. The results? The end of the Source? Unfortunately, the Administration's lack of backbone resulted in several failed meetings and excuses in the form of free speech. The Faculty and Student Body came together to protest and held a Rally (see the pictures throughout the page) but not much else happened. One can only hope that one day the University will truly support the diversity that it profits from daily and actual make some changes.

"Don't ever let them have power over you."

- Talia Qunadelacy, 07

Transition

Our hearts are filled with joy and jubilation
As you celebrate the end of your undergraduate education
You have transitioned into adulthood with hopes and dreams
To have a positive impact on the lives of other human beings
No matter the career in life you create
Follow the path that strengthens your faith
It is important to do something that you love
For true happiness is a blessing from above.

The transition from a young man to adult has taken some years
You have expanded your knowledge and conquered your fears
And when you and your energy is spent
Lean on the Lord who gives you strength
Keep the joy in your heart and a smile on your face
Stay close to God and He will continue to shower you with His grace.

Congratulations!

Keep on helping others as you move on to new horizons.

To my favorite brother:

It seems like only yesterday I was taping big pictures of bugs from science magazines to your door to scare you.

We've both come a long way since last week...

It's not too difficult to look at us and see the glaring differences which should divide us. Over time though, I've come to appreciate the fundamental similarities in our personalities, work ethic, sense of humor, etc. which bring us closer together. We're both out of college now. Well, undergrad, anyway. Soon we'll be so absorbed in our own lives that we'll scarcely have time to see each other on visits to Mom and Dad's solid gold house (what else are they going to do after they don't have to pay tuition anymore?). I hope that doesn't end up being the case. You keep proofing my papers, I'll keep solving your math and computer problems, and if we combine forces we can take over the universe. Or at least Boise, Idaho. Congratulations, and enjoy whatever foreign country you run off to this summer.

Our Dearest Garen,

You can't imagine how happy and proud we are to see our beloved grandson's graduation from college. We thank God that He gave us the good health to proudly witness this happy day, along with your parents. May God always bless you and reward you for all your hard work. May He give you happiness, health, and the fulfillment of all your dreams.

Love always,

Nani and Dédé

Garen,

I was on the West Coast most of your childhood but valued being able to visit with your family on trips east to check in on how the nephews were doing. A highlight of one of my visits from California was being invited by you to go down to the family- room to see a show by the fabulous four year old. You were great! I have loved being able to attend performances that you gave at school and your piano recital. I love children's literature and you were willing to sit by me and let me share favorite books with you. I look forward to attending Shakespeare plays with you as an adult. Your poems and art work at a young age show you have talent. I hope that you will continue to dabble in arts. You are a caring individual and started community service at a young age. I expect that will continue. Congratulations on your graduation from Tufts. I know that you have worked hard. We are very proud of you.

For Sarah Kohnstamm

Congratulations on your graduation from Tufts. Like life itself, college is full of endless possibilities. It is what you do to realize them that makes all the difference. You brought to your experience at Tufts a boundless energy, an infectious enthusiasm, your contagious smile and a passion for learning and active citizenship. All these qualities were evident in your work as a Tisch College Scholar, Freshman Orientation leader, President of the Tufts Dance Collective, Captain of the JV Tennis Team, as well as in all of your classes. In every way, you have shown yourself to be a talented and dedicated leader. Equally important, you have done so while growing into a confident poised young woman well equipped for the future.

We celebrate with you your many achievements and most of all the kind of person that you are. We are so very proud of you.

~Diana Darrell '07

Something not many people are aware of is that we never intended to ever work on the Yearbook. We both have hectic class schedules, full personal lives, and Ashley held a strong desire never to get involved with a Tufts Student Organization.

The Jumbo Staff...

We ended up with this job quite by accident. It started out as an attempt to help a friend. Yet before we knew it our two-week assignment turned into a yearlong position. It was October and we had alot to learn and even more to do. We didn't have a working computer, we had no cameras, no idea how to work our software, and an upcoming Senior Portrait Session. One of us couldn't even take a decent picture (you'll never guess which one!).

One of the first things we decided to do was make the book bigger. We put the cover in leather, used thicker paper, and added an additional sixteen pages. We soon realized though that creating a project of this magnitude takes a lot of time and effort. There were numerous sleepless nights and trips to Brown & Brew. It was a long and involved journey. Yet in the process of creating this book we found out alot about ourselves and gained more real world experience imaginable.

We also found a staff that has been unbelievable. When it came down to it these individuals stepped up and stood with us despite everything. We cannot express enough the amazing work ethic, spirit, and talent they have. Sara, Aileen. Diana, Melissa, Corey, and Molly: You were great. Sara's sports pages are fabulous, Diana's graduation section leaves us with lasting memories, Aileen's various layouts (such as Homecoming) are beautiful. This is to the wonderful Jumbo 007 Staff: Guys, you made Jumbo Book possible. Thank you for all your hard work and if you ever need a glowing reference don't hesitate to call us.

We were very lucky to have an amazing support system. Without these people we could never have made it through this year. Thank you Tom, Caren, Jodie, and Dot for being there and believing in us. We would also like to thank Jostens, Davor, and the everfaithful TUPD.

Love,

Ashley & Asha

Editor's Notes:

In high school a friend's dad remarked that he didn't have time to be depressed growing up because he was too busy trying to find something to eat.

Likewise, it is a common adage that what doesn't kill you makes you stronger, that the Lord only gives us what we can handle. From the day I was born I struggled to breath, in grade school I struggled to find a home as my family moved constantly. My entire life I have struggled for an education. Each day of boarding school was a struggle to simply be. Each day of Tufts has been a journey to make it. It's not the academics - I've never really struggled that way.

Its everything else. The bigotry that festers around you. The politics. It makes it that much harder to sit in class. Yet it adds a weight and worth to your degree that is immeasurable. I've also had a lot of personal struggle from parental illnesses to the loss of my sister Dee Dee. Yet I'm still here in large part to my loving family and amazing friends. To My Family: Thank you for being there. It doesn't matter if we fight or if we're not speaking I know when I call you all come running. I'm truly blessed to have you. Carol, Les, Stephanie, and Kimberly: Thank you for allowing me to be a part of your family. Diana: Thanks for being the best roomie and friend a girl could have. I don't know how you put up with me but you did. My Friends: You guys have been there when

I thought I had no one else - thanks for the laughs, the hugs, and the love. Tom, Caren, Jodie, Dot: We could never have made it through this year without you. Especially Tom who has been so patient and understanding through everything. Asha: We actually we did it! Good luck next year. I came into Tufts ready to climb back in the car and run away. And I'm leaving this place jumping in the front seat and heading to the next step. Remember adversity makes you stronger.

Sincerely,

Ashley Morgan Seawright

EDITOR'S NOTES:

Once I completed my work on this year's JumboBook, I took a step back for a few days. I felt stressed, tired, drained, and slightly relieved. A few days later, I still feel the same. More than relief, I feel a sense of pride.

As Ashley and I have been stressing, when we took on this task, we had no idea what we were doing. We looked through old yearbooks to no avail until we picked up a copy of the 1983 Jumbo Book. Here, was the book of another editor-in-chief who had no idea what he was doing. He made the bold move of doubling the number of pages of the yearbook. He took a chance and defied all traditional rules for the layout and content of the book. A JumboBook full of personality and style, the result was amazing and captured the essence of 1983.

Inspired by them, we, as a staff, tried to rekindle that spirit in this book. As one of two editors-in-chief, I tried to make sure that every page was filled with personality and flavor. I hope you enjoyed this book.

Moving on, I'd like to thank a few people. Ashley, we really did it. We made it through those tough meeting times, numerous phone calls and text messages, and finally got out the book. Congratulations and good luck next year.

Ed and Sharnette, thanks for listening to all of the complaining.

Kaw, thanks for the sanity and smiles. =) Much love.

Ed and Rosita, thank you for being so flexible about work. I couldn't ask for two better bosses.

To Tom, Caren, Dot, and Jodie, thank you for being there whenever we needed, and for staying on top of things to make sure the book got published. We could not have done this without your help and support. Also, thanks to TUPD for protecting us.

To all of my family and close friends, thank you for all of the help, support, and encouragement. This year has been insane for many reasons. Thank you for just being there. Just because I did not list all of you by name does not make you less special.

To the staff, take a look back at what you did. Each layout looks perfect. Aileen, Diana, Melissa, and Molly, congratulations on graduating and good luck next year. Corey and Sarah, I can't wait to work with you guys on the next yearbook. Now that I actually know what I'm doing, 2008 will be better than ever. It will anyways, because its 000000000000008!

Of course, Jumbo, we love you! Stay being the one thing we're actually proud of at Tufts.

As I close, I have nothing inspirational to say. I still have another year at Tufts, so much more to learn, and another JumboBook to publish. All I can say is don't let anyone hold you back. When you think you can't, take a step back and try again. It sounds cliché, but look what two formally clueless women did. =)

Peace.

Asha Deena Alex
Editor-in-Chief

Dear Owner of the 2006-2007 Yearbook,

This year, Jumbo 007 tried to make this publication more involved. Rather than being a mass of pictures and reprinted works, we wanted to take the Jumbo Book further or rather back to its past. One of our first discoveries was the Yearbook of 1983 under the direction of, then Editor-in-Chief, Kenney Beck. The book was unique, edgy, and reported on the entire Tufts experience. The Editors dared to criticize the University, dared to create their own unique layout - the result a wonderful book done with a novice at the helm that is full of wit, originality, and memories. It effectively captured Tufts in that moment, the era of the early eighties. Using it as inspiration we choose to push our book further, to take a bit from the Class of 1983 and try to bring back the original Jumbo Book.

Yet there is something to be said for originality and then there is going too far. Regardless of one's intent, harm can be caused by one's actions. As responsible Editors we believe accountability is vital. Therefore we would like to apologize up front for The Jumbo History on page sixteen. Through an error on our part the page made it into the book unedited. We apologize to anyone offended by this material. It was never our intention. We do hope you will enjoy the remainder of the book and forgive us this transgression.

We would also like to apologize for a mistake in the Faculty Section. The picture listed for the Art History Department is actually of the Math Department. The Art History Department did submit a photograph for inclusion and we apologize for this error. We also like to apologize for any misspelling of names, typos, or other errors that escaped our notice.

We hope you enjoy the 2006-2007 Yearbook and that it provides you with lasting memories for many years to come.

Sincerely,

Asha D. Alex

"Live in the present, and make it so beautiful that it will be worth remembering." -Unknown

Senior Year

The Class of 2007

The Class of 2007 arrived back, after a year away, to the Hill. We began the year by reconnecting with the campus, our classmates, friends, and President and Adele Bacow during the Welcome Back Reception. We took possession of Sophia Gordon Hall and made "Sophie" and "07" famous for a good time. We went on to take classes, finish our requirements, and fill out our degree sheets.

We met our future peers (Tufts Alums) and showed tremendous school spirit during Homecoming as we trampled Bates. The winter was tame (for once) as we ran naked (hopefully, at least, for some of us) for the last time. Meanwhile, the Bacows generously opened their homes to us during Senior Dinners. We met alums, heard our classmates recount stories, and finally got to see the inside of Gifford House. And yes, President Bacow really does live there.

There we heard how freshman friends started TUTV shows, sophomores gradually came to accept their fate as Jumbos, and one brave freshman girl during Rugby Initiation dared to approach Gifford House to obtain one of President Bacow's running shoes.

Spring Fling came back with a vengeance bringing Spoon, Lupe Fiasco, and T.I. Some of us danced on stage and others of us ran to escape mud covered parties. And then it happened. Senior Week hit.

Contrary to popular misconception, there actually was some drama in our class. Several days of constant intoxication sadly revealed some ugly truths about several of our classmates and friends. But there were countless memories to cherish - The President's Reception, Riding the Bull at the Liquor Store, The Red Sox's Game, The Booze Cruise, The Champagne Brunch, and Gala. And on a rainy but glorious day, we graduated. In the weeks following Commencement we packed up, moved away, found jobs, and made plans for the next step.

Some of us are still looking for jobs. Some of us are still taking classes. Some of us are still around Tufts. Yet we made a journey through this year and the past four years...together.

And though we may not see each other every day, we have these memories to hold on to.

"Sooner or later we all discover that the important moments in life are not the advertised ones...the real milestones are less prepossessing...they come to the door of memory unannounced...our lives are measured by these."

Susan B. Anthony

Welcome Back Reception

On September 5, 2006, this year's senior class gathered on the library rooftop for the annual Welcome Back Seniors Reception hosted by the Tufts University Alumni Association (TUAA). Filling up on appetizers and drinks, we shared an emotional and festive reunion. There were hugs and shouts, gasps of recognition, and the renewing of friendships after a year long separation. Donning our Class of 2007 T-Shirts and grabbing frisbees, with smiles and a bit of nervousness, we heralded that the Class of 2007 had returned to the Hill and senior year had arrived.

Senior Dinners

"I came to Tufts and I hated it. And then one day, on the way back to school after winter break, I began to get excited as we approached the Massachusetts border. I realized I couldn't wait to see my friends, to hang out in Stratton, to start the semester. And then it hit me. I liked Tufts. I was proud to be a Jumbo. Somewhere between hating this place, and trying to get away, I came to love it. Tufts had become home to me." A Senior Reflection from Ashley Seawright, LA '07.

President's Reception

The President's Reception

Senior Week was launched by a reception behind Gifford House hosted by President Bacow. It marked not only the beginning of Senior Week but one of the last times President Bacow would address the Class of 2007 as undergraduates.

SENIOR WEEK '07

A week of events for each year's graduating class leading up to Commencement. The 2007 Senior Week began on May 12th with the President Reception and concluded on Friday May 18th with the Senior Barbeque. From white water rafting, to paint ball, to Red Sox's Games, beach trips, and to Six Flags New England and beyond, here is Senior Week 2007!!!

Pub

Nights

Felt, Jake Ivory's, and the Liquor Store. Best Moment??? Hands down, Riding the Bull. Check out the TCU President Mitch Robinson tackle (well try to anyway) the infamous Bull.

Senior BBQ

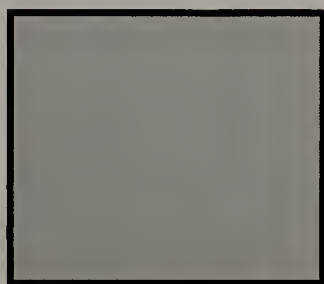

"It was the last event of Senior Week and everyone was excited to celebrate together one last time before the big day. The rain was pouring and the ground was muddy, but the Senior BBQ was nonetheless a huge success. The Class of 2007 gathered to share memories and laughter as they enjoyed savory foods and drinks."

Dorm Reunions

Time travel back to freshman year. Tilton? Houston? Carmichael? Memories. The crazy nights, the freshman fifteen. Gotta love the freshman dorm.

Red Sox Game

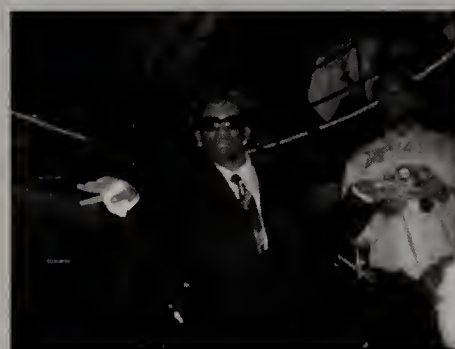

And like the Bostonians they all become (Well almost all. This Editor is a Jersey Girl and a proud Yankee Fan) Tufts celebrated like true Red Sox fans. Famous words: "I Believe".

Senior Cruise

"600 seniors on 1 boat + being in the middle of 1 very large body of water + no professors, faculty, staff and most importantly underclassmen = the start of senior week!!!" Zoe Gibson, LA 07

Samuel Adams Brewery Tour

"The Sam Adams Brewery tour was very amusing and informative as the tour guide entertained us with jokes, facts, and great samples of beer. We learned about the ingredients and process of brewing beer. Aside from the free glass, the best part of the tour was being with great company while having cups after cups of beer."

- Aileen Thai, LA '07

SPRING FLING 07

This year Spring Fling roared back with a vengeance. Freshman year we were treated to a stellar line up featuring Less than Jake, rap originators the Sugar Hill Gang, and the ever favorite The Roots. Rocking the crowd and showing their musical genius The Roots entered onto the stage and the Presidents Lawn would never be the same. At least thats what we all thought. Now fast forward through two years of shows that have had their highs and lows. Busta Rhymes proved he will never perform at Tufts and then Tufts Alums Guster came back the following year. Now we are not dissing Guster but when other schools herald high profile acts like Lloyd Banks (MIT) then its hard to get as excited about Guster (off campus anyway). 2007 changed that.

Concert Board, thanks to some extra funding from the Tufts Community Union Senate, created a line up to please any Tufts student. Featuring Spoon, Lupe Fiasco, and T.I., Spring Fling was an outside concert that was nothing short of amazing. Many of us watched as our fellow Jumbos dared to join T.I. on stage and ran as others turned the Presidents Lawn into a mud filled mosh pit.

Still the wonderful early morning pre-gaming in Sophie coupled with some amazing music, marked Spring Fling 07 as a time the Presidents lawn, or any of us, will not forget for some time.

Senior Gala

Senior Gala

The BIGGEST event of Senior Week! This year's Senior Gala was held on Tuesday May 15, 2007 at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel. Dressed in their best, the Class of 2007 ate, drank, danced the night away, showed some real "affection", and took over the Plaza's Ballrooms. And when the DJs tried to leave at 1:00 am, the class broke out into the electric slide earning themselves another hour. 07!!!

Commencement

The 151st Graduating Class of Tufts University

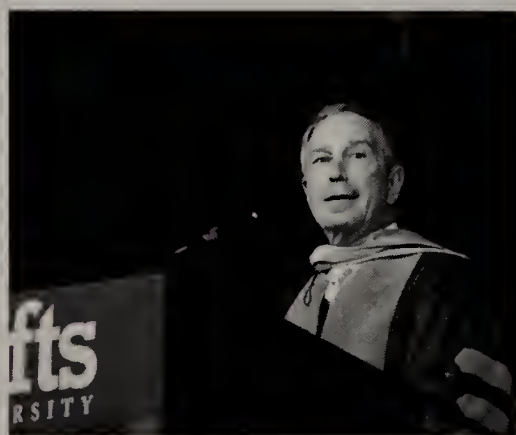

On May 20, 2007, the Class of 2007 became the 151st graduating class of Tufts University. President Bacow summed up the day quite well when he remarked, "Today is a beautiful day. The weather is not great, but it's a beautiful day, commencement always is."

Over the course of the day the University issued a total of 2,437 degrees. Of the over twenty-four hundred degrees 1,144 went to undergraduates. The University also presented several honorary degrees. Honorary degrees were conferred to composer and professor emeritus Thomas Jefferson Anderson; engineer

Lord Alec Broers; astronaut and alumnus Frederick H. (Rick) Hauck, A62; dancer and educator Denise Jefferson; economist and Nobel recipient Thomas C. Schelling; and the Mayor of New York City Michael Bloomberg who presented the commencement address.

Despite the overcast skies and the continual downpour it was a day of distinction, excitement, and achievement for the graduates and their families. It was a day filled with speeches, reflections, well wishes, and congratulations. It was indeed a beautiful day.

A Message from the Editor

This year was a year of new beginnings for the Jumbo Book. Jumbo 007 started off with the express purpose of reclaiming the yearbook glory of the past. At the same time, we also wanted to push the book further. One of the major shortcomings of past yearbooks has been the exclusion of events in April and May. In order to be printed in time for graduation, the Yearbook had to be completed by mid-March. Unfortunately, this meant several of the most important events of senior year - Spring Fling, Senior Week, and Commencement were excluded from the yearbook. Jumbo 007 decided to change that and at the same time create a new Tufts Tradition. For the first time, graduating editors compiled a new annual summer supplement.

True, the summer did present some challenges. It was a little hard to work on the yearbook after graduation. Moreover, it took valuable time that this particularly Editor could have used to find a job. The summer months also presented the University with several important losses. Sadly, we marked the passing of our fellow classmate David Rawson and our beloved Tufts Professor and mentor Professor Gerald Gill. Nonetheless, here it is the 2007 Jumbo Yearbook Supplement.

This Supplement would not have been possible without the help and contributions of several people. The Tufts Yearbook would like to thank Julie O'Connor and Alumni Relations and Anjali Nirmalan and OSA for their wonderful photographs. A special thank you to Alleen Thai, and Zoe Gibson for their contributions, and Tom Keeley for being so understanding.

I hope these pages and the entire 2007 Yearbook brings you lasting memories for years to come. May they hold you until we can make new memories as Tufts Alumni. 07!!!

In Memoriam

DAVID RAWSON

David Rawson passed away on June 28, 2007 in California.

David was a tremendously caring and passionate individual with a strong interest in cultures, travel, and world affairs. A friendly face with an outgoing and caring personality, everyone knew David. From class, the stage, through EPIIC, or if you were simply fortunate enough to run into him on campus, it was hard to miss his love of learning, integrity, and compassion.

David made a tremendous impact on his family, friends, and the University. His passing shortly after obtaining a Bachelor of Arts in International Relations with Honors was a great tragedy. David, you are an inspiration to us all.

YOU WILL TRULY BE MISSED.

Gerald R. Gill

In Memory

Few individuals have wielded such a large and multi-generational influence on Tufts University than Professor Gerald Gill. Arguably, one of the most beloved teachers in Tufts history, Gerald Gill was a treasured colleague, teacher, mentor, and friend. He was a constant presence on the Hill from his arrival in 1980.

A master historian, an artful story teller, an astute mentor, a caring friend, and a loving father, Professor Gill gave of himself endlessly and freely. His mental capacity was nothing short of awe-inspiring. It seemed there was no subject that Professor Gill did not know something about. His own scholarly research centered on race relations in Boston, African-American opposition to the wars of the twentieth century, and the history of African-Americans at Tufts.

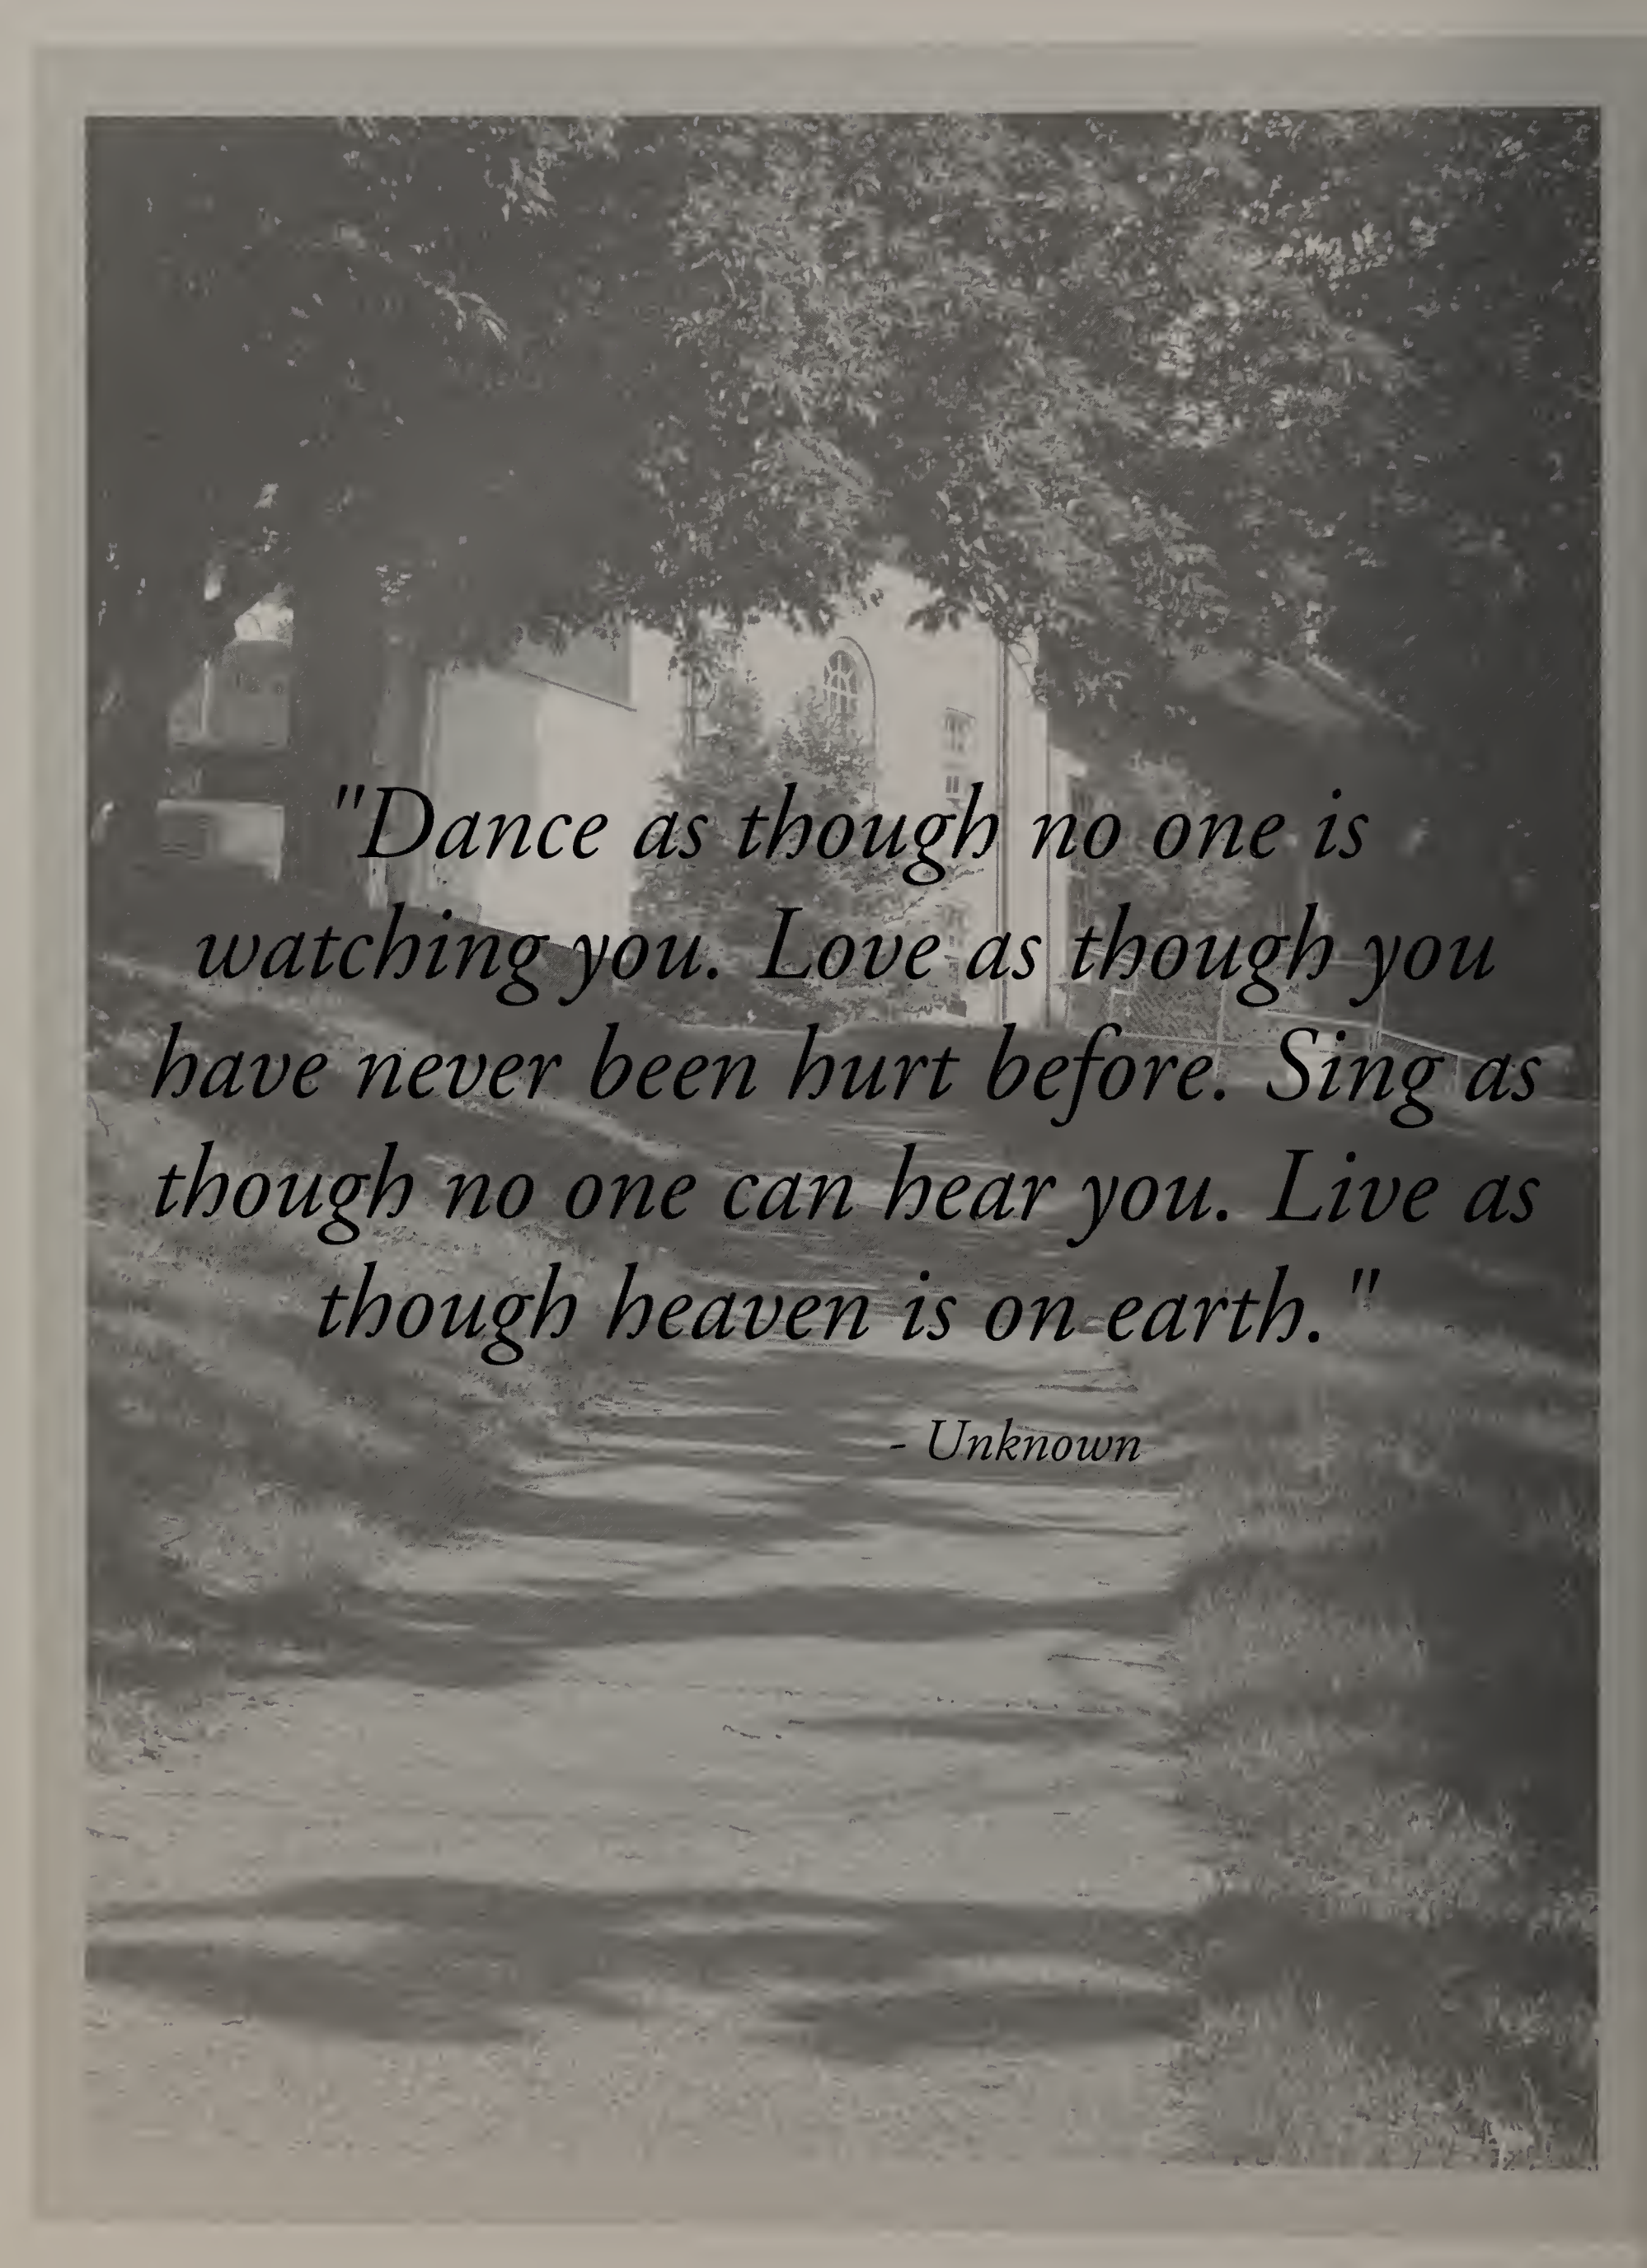

Professor Gill was a distinguished and celebrated teacher and historian. He was twice voted the Massachusetts Professor of the Year. He was a much sought after faculty adviser and the very first recipient of the Lerman-Neubauer Prize for Outstanding Teaching and Advising. His many other awards included the Arts and Sciences Multicultural Service Award, the Allan Cormack Award for Outstanding Achievement in Collaborative Research, and the Distinguished Service Award for Outstanding Contributions to the Tufts Community from the Africana Center, subsequently named the Gerald R. Gill Distinguished Service Award. From the outset of his arrival at the University, Gerald Gill was a strong advocate of diversity, always pushing Tufts to become a more inclusive place. With his soft spoken and comforting manner, his near unlimited knowledge, it is so hard to imagine Tufts without this wonderful man. Responding to the news of Professor Gill's passing, President Bacow remarked, "Tufts loved Gerald and Gerald loved Tufts." One did not have to look far to see this. Often when asked for a piece of advice to give to incoming students, many Tufts students proudly proclaimed: "Take a Professor Gill class. If nothing else, take his class. It will change your life." Professor Gill, Thank You for changing our lives. The Hill will not be the same without you.

"Tufts Loved Gerald and Gerald Loved Tufts."

- President Lawrence Bacow

A black and white photograph of a path leading through trees towards a building. The path is made of light-colored stones or gravel, winding through a dense forest of tall trees with thick foliage. In the background, a light-colored building with a prominent arched window is visible through the trees. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and serene.

"Dance as though no one is watching you. Love as though you have never been hurt before. Sing as though no one can hear you. Live as though heaven is on earth."
